In January 2008, The Durgas finished off their Southeast Asia Concert Tour with a stop on the Thai-Burma Border, in a town called Mae Sot. Upon arriving, they set up a series of small concerts and interactive workshops with the Burmese Migrant Schools around town. The impact of their music and kindness upon the school community did not go unnoticed. As a result, The Good Morning School, along with the Burmese Migrant Workers Education Committee, have invited The Durgas back to Mae Sot to kick off the beginning of the 2009-2010 school year.

The Burmese children and teachers in Mae Sot have persevered through conflict and crisis. Their continued effort to establish schools and advocate for the right to education as stated in The Universal Declaration of Human Rights is paramount.

It is Good Mornings Schools honor to host The Durgas with the hope that their music will once again bring our Burmese children the opportunity to express themselves through Visual and Performing Arts and foster academic and personal growth through sharing in love and music.

With Gratitude,

Good Morning School

We are absolutely delighted to welcome you back to our office for another concert here on Thursday 18 June.

The last show you played here was an inspiration to all of us. This time round, we are especially looking forward to hearing a live rendition of Face The Sun, the song you wrote for us. It holds special meaning for us.

We are glad to have the opportunity to welcome you back to our family, and we look forward to hearing you play again.

Dear Durgas members,

The Mae Tao Clinic is delighted to host your performances in Mae Sot at the clinic and at our schools for Burmese migrant children in the area in June 2009.

We are planning a community concert on 19 June in the clinic compound to celebrate the birthday of democracy leader Aung San Suu Kyi. We are also organizing visits to schools for migrant students where you can share your music and bring joy to these children.

We are pleased to that Burmese migrant children will participate in an event with local Thai school children on 20 June at the municipal hall. This initiative can build good community relations and is an opportunity for Burmese and Thai children to share their culture through traditional dance and music and meet new friends.

Your performances in Mae Sod in January 2008 at our clinic and schools were wonderful entertainment for the large Burmese migrant population and gave a chance for children to participate in the events.

We are looking forward to your return visit.

Best regards,
Thar Win ( School Health Team)
